

Near

Inside

On

Beside

Under

Behind

PREPOSITIONS

Between

In front

Above

Out of Around

COMMONLY CONFUSED PREPOSITION

IN ON AT

Prepositions of Time

IN- The pyramid's TOP (wider), which is BIGGER and more GENERAL:

Bigger periods of time: Centuries, Decades, Years, Months

Examples: in the 20th century, in the 1980's, in March, in the third week of April, in the future

Exceptions: in the morning, in the evening, in the afternoon

ON- The pyramid's MIDDLE part, which is SMALLER and MORE SPECIFIC:

Days, or periods of time shorter than three days

Examples: on my birthday, on Saturday, on the weekend (United States), on June 8th

Exceptions: on my lunch break, on time

AT- The pyramid's BOTTOM (pointed), the SMALLEST, and the MOST SPECIFIC:

Specific times or small time periods.

Examples: at 9:00 PM, at lunch, at dinner, at the start of the party, at sunrise, at the start of the movie, at the moment

Exceptions: at night, at the weekend (England)

Prepositions of Location

IN – The TOP (wider), which is BIGGER and more GENERAL:

In larger areas (countries, states, cities, neighborhoods)

Examples: in the United States, in Miami, in my neighborhood

Exceptions: ~~in~~ downtown (“I work ~~in~~ downtown”)

ON – The MIDDLE, which is SMALLER and MORE SPECIFIC:

a longer area, street, beach, river

Examples: on Broadway Street, on the beach, on my street

AT – The pyramid’s BOTTOM (pointed), the SMALLEST, and the MOST SPECIFIC:
the address or specific location, specific points.

Examples: at 345 Broadway street, at the store, at my house

INFO

The phrase “on the bus” is correct when you’re a passenger traveling by bus. For example:

- She is on the bus, reading her book.
- They prefer to travel on buses rather than by car.

In contrast, “in the bus” is less commonly used but can be correct in certain contexts where the emphasis is on the location rather than the act of traveling. Such as:

- The forgotten umbrella is still in the bus.
- You use "on the plate" for solid food because it sits on a surface, while you use "in the bowl" for liquids like soup because they are held inside a deep container.

When should I use “for,” “since,” and “during” in English?

- Use for to describe a period of time (for two hours). The preposition for is used to express the duration of an action; the period of an action or event.

- I’ve lived here for 8 months.
- She was waiting for him for 5 years.
- We haven’t seen each other for a long time.

Use since to mark the starting point of an action (since Monday). The preposition since is used to indicate a starting point, after which the action continues.

- I haven’t seen them since 2012.
- It has been raining since morning.
- You haven’t talked about that since Jake left.

Use during to indicate something happening within a particular time frame or event (during the meeting). The preposition during is used together with nouns and shows that something happens within a certain time period.

- He fell asleep during the film. He was asleep for half an hour.

Among and between are two prepositions that are sometimes used interchangeably, but they have different meanings.

- Among means “surrounded by” or “in the company of.” It’s normally followed by a plural noun.
- Between refers to the space that separates two or more distinct things or to the interval that separates two or more distinct times. It’s normally followed by a series of two or more singular nouns.

The thief hid among the wandering tourists.	The coffee shop is between the post office and the bank.
Alicia is happy when she’s among friends.	Paul works between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. every day .

Use "made of" when you can still see the original material, and "made from" when the material has been changed.

Made of: A house is made of bricks.

Made from: Butter is made from milk.

Ago Specifies how much time has passed from the present moment until now.

Before is used in reference to two events. Used with the past perfect tense when referring to a time before another past event.

Eg: He came three days ago.

The train had left before he reached the station.

Beside and Besides have altogether different meanings. Don't confuse beside with besides.

Beside = at the side of. Eg: He was sitting beside Mia.

Besides=in addition to/ as well as. Eg: He has a car besides a motorcycle.

Link for reference

<https://www.sscadda.com/english-grammar-preposition/>

<https://www.examveda.com/competitive-english/practice-mcq-question-on-preposition/>